FOREWORD

THIS book, with two supplements, one to be ready July 1st and the other September 1st, is published upon a subscription basis. It is a continuation, in a more practical form, of the publication of 1918. The edition is five thousand. The price of the book and supplements is two dollars, delivered.

THE DEPARTMENT.

General.

The Motor Vehicle Department of the State of Connecticut was placed under the direction of a Commissioner by the Public Acts of 1917.

The Commissioner took office June 1st, 1917.

The Department is a public servant; its resources and operatives are for public service; its forces and influence are attempted to be directed toward efficiency and to make motoring safe.

Criticisms, suggestions and co-operation are earnestly requested.

A booklet of the law and rules of the road will be sent on application.

Registrations and Operators' Licenses.

On account of the large increase in the number of motors in general use and the consequent additional registrations and operators' licenses required to be issued, the Department was, in 1917, reorganized on a larger scale.

It now consists of a main office occupying a suite of rooms on the third floor of the Capitol at Hartford, and of two branch offices, one in the Police Headquarters Building on Court Street, New Haven, and one in the Police Headquarters Building on Fairfield Avenue, Bridgeport.

Inspection System.

Inspection Districts are laid out on a basis of population and of highways to be covered, so that each inspector may be located at a convenient enforcement point.

Inspectors have charge of the examination of new operators and also do enforcement work.

Cases are heard at convenient centers in each county.

At present public hearings are held regularly in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, Hartford and New London, and, as occasion demands, in other centers.

DEPARTMENT RULINGS.

The following interpretative rulings of the Department cover matters often inquired about.

Suspension of Licenses.

The power to suspend operators' licenses or owners' registrations is vested only in the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner and no other person is authorized by law to take up a license or registration. It often happens that the Commissioners ask Inspectors or Officers operating under their direction to actually perform the act of taking up the license or registration for forwarding to the office, but in general this subject is only dealt with by the Department.

When a license is suspended the effect is that the party whose license is so taken cannot drive at all during the period of suspension and is not allowed to operate a car under any conditions whatever during that period.

Operator's Age.

The law is mandatory to the effect that no person under the age of eighteen can be granted an operator's license. The Department receives a great many inquiries as to whether this rule can be waived. It cannot. Any person over sixteen can drive a motor vehicle without having an operator's license, provided some one holding a license is present in the car.

This does not apply to any operator whose license has been suspended or revoked.

Foreign Cars.

Any person operating a car within the State of Connecticut for a period over thirty days, not necessarily consecutive, will be required to take out an operator's license and the car so operated will be required to be registered under Connecticut law.

Mirrors.

A mirror is required to be installed upon any commercial motor vehicle where the driver's view of the road to the rear is obstructed. This means that a truck on which the driver's seat is enclosed or where the load obstructs his view needs to have a mirror.

A close case would need to be judged by the facts and would be determined as to whether there was a reasonable opportunity for the driver to see what was coming from the rear.

A mirror must be placed so that the driver can actually use it with effect. A mirror that is broken or out of order or out of place or not located so the road to the rear is shown therein does not comply with the law.

Pleasure cars do not need to have mirrors.

Trailers and Tractors.

Trailers are required to have rubber tires.

Tractors are not granted registration except that a tractor with rubber tires may have a registration limited to one trailer.

Right-of-Way Rules.

In the interpretation of any right-of-way rule the limitation must be considered that the party entitled to exercise the right of way is required by law to exercise it reasonably and not to insist upon it where it would bring anyone else in danger. This is a limitation which applies to all rules for governing conduct in driving cars.

Speed.

All driving must be at a reasonable rate of speed. What actually constitutes a reasonable rate of speed in one place may not even approximate it in another. The determination of what is a reasonable rate of speed in any particular place is a question of fact and each driver must decide this for himself.

ENFORCEMENT AND CO-OPERATION.

The problem of enforcement of any such general law as that governing motor vehicles must necessarily depend for its effectiveness mainly upon two factors.

The first is that the people who are to be governed by the law must definitely understand the reasons back of the particular prescriptions, and must be absolutely familiar with the operative portions. In other words, the law must appeal to their reason and common sense, and they must know enough of its requirements to actually put it into practice.

So far as this imposes a duty on the Motor Vehicle Department it is to educate the driving public in these practical requirements, and when such education is comparatively complete an increasing severity in enforcement must follow to eliminate that small percentage of operators who are persistently ignorant, vicious or defective.

The other factor referred to is that of co-operation.

With a comparatively small body of officers it is impossible to properly watch and control any such number of operators as is now upon the highways of the State, unless owners and drivers themselves will co-operate.

Considerable such co-operation has already been secured. There are many individuals interested, and a large number of them are furnishing information. It is hoped to interest many more.

Arrangements have been made and will soon be perfected by which motor vehicles approaching railway grade crossings at a rate of speed so rapid that the driver would be unable to stop upon signal, will be reported, also motor vehicles passing trolley cars which are standing for the purpose of taking on or discharging passengers will be so reported.

Automobile clubs are providing a large amount of detailed information and advice, and as a great deal of this is based upon the experience of members, it proves immensely valuable in its critical analysis of the work of the Department.

The press of this State and of adjoining states has been quick to see and appreciate the importance of co-operative work and has helped immensely by editorial comment and by news articles.

To all of these the Department extends its thanks and acknowledges its debt.

CAUSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS.

The accident file records of the Motor Vehicle Department demonstrate that certain preponderating classes of accidents can be traced to their contributing causes.

The statistics of certain groups of collision accidents have already taken such form that the Department feels justified in giving them publicity.

One such group occurs mainly in trunk line driving in the country. Any collision is invariably traceable to the attempt of one vehicle to pass from the rear at an unsuitable place, usually on a curve or on the top of a hill, while another vehicle is approaching from the opposite direction.

The law governing this kind of passing is clear and positive:—" * * The person overtaking and passing to the left of the person or vehicle overtaken shall do so subject to the right of way of those travelling in an opposite direction," etc.

The duty of especial care is thereby placed upon any driver coming up to pass from the rear, to see that he does so in a suitable place, that is, in a place where he has amply sufficient clear vision ahead of the car he is intending to pass to insure that no vehicle approaching from the opposite direction will be met, until he has passed and safely returned to the right side of the road.

Some drivers seem to be temperamentally unfitted to stay in the rear of any vehicle at all, or until a proper opportunity to pass is presented. With such, and in general with all offenders of this nature, the Department will be severe.

In the city, collisions take place most frequently at intersecting streets. Such are largely due to "cutting corners" and to neglect to grant right of way to vehicle approaching from the right, and to "cutting in ahead."

Of these three causes the first is the most common. A liberal use of silent policemen will help conditions which occasion it, and town and city authorities responsible for placing such should remember that it is poor economy not to use them freely.

The right of way to a vehicle approaching from the right is a good provision. It is probably generally understood, but is hardly ingrained enough, as yet, to allow of a critical application of it as an absolute criterion for blame.

"Cutting in ahead" is common and will receive severe treatment.

The adjudication of all right-of-way rules will be along the lines of reason and common sense. That is, the person who is entitled by law to the right of way must exercise such right with limitations. Just because he is entitled to the right of way will not be interpreted to mean that he is entitled to the right of way irrespective of others. The use must be reasonable.

A case involving this principle has recently been decided in the Superior Court.

The memorandum of decision, by Judge Gager, in the case of Taylor vs. Kinner, Fairfield County, says, in part:—"The rule of the road is designed to keep travellers out of danger. It cannot be insisted on when its observance will manifestly bring one into danger."

The improper parking of cars is another cause which contributes to many accidents. This is particularly true where a stop is made upon a through road for the purpose of changing a tire. It is apparently the belief of many drivers that as soon as a tire is flat it must be changed at once and that it is wrong to run a car even a short distance upon a deflated tire. This occasions stopping wherever the tire has burst, which is often in the center of the road or on a curve, or in some place where other cars approaching do not have a clear and uninterrupted view.

It is necessary, and safety requires, that when a stop is made for any purpose whatever, the car making the stop shall be parked on the right-hand side of the road in a well-selected place, on a straight stretch of road where other drivers passing may be able to see it and other traffic near it at a reasonable distance.

This is especially true at night.

"SKIDDING" AND THE USE OF THE EMERGENCY BRAKE.

Upon the records of the Motor Vehicle Department a large percentage of serious accidents are charged to "Skidding."

Investigation has led to the present conclusion that the skid is caused, in cases where chains are not used, and such cases very largely predominate, by a lack of proper driving knowledge.

It is common to find drivers, otherwise competent and in many cases expert, whose only idea of proceeding down a wet and slippery hill is to coast with clutch out and the speed governed by the use of the footbrake. This is always a dangerous proceeding. A moment's thought will at once show that this method must result in retarding or perhaps entirely stopping the driving wheels, which become at once, to all intents and purposes, runners, and, as they cannot turn, must slide.

If the spot on the highway where such condition is produced has even a slight incline or tip to one side or the other, a skid, more or less serious, at once results.

To prevent sliding and skidding the driving wheels must be kept turning, and this is readily accomplished by keeping the engine coupled in gear. An experienced and well-trained operator going down a grade or hill in wet weather, and usually at all times, never coasts, but invariably uses his engine in gear. For a long hill he will also turn off his ignition and use compression and footbrake, and sometimes his emergency as well, to hold his car at proper speed. If all drivers would adopt this practice, skidding would soon be past history.

At the hearings of the Department, a large number of collisions between machines being considered, it has appeared that the emergency or hand brake is seldom set before the collision takes place. Only one possible reason for this presents itself, namely, this brake is so rarely used for purposes of control of the car while in motion that the driver is not practiced in such use. Consequently when the emergency for which it could be useful confronts the driver, he does not use it because he is not trained and in readiness.

SIGNALLING.

Signalling with the horn seems to be understood by all drivers of motors, and such accidents as occur, where the use of this particular device is called for, are due either to defect in equipment, the horn itself being out of commission or not assertive enough, or because the driver is possessed of one of those undesirable temperaments which allows him to operate on the principle that all he needs to do is to "blow the horn" and the world will listen and obey. The defective horn can be easily remedied, and the class of drivers referred to is, happily, a small one. It can and will be made smaller as its individual members are apprehended.

Signalling with the arm to indicate stops and turns is now a necessary part of the education of every competent driver, and the Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles in conducting examinations is requiring this knowledge. Such signals are somewhat diversified, but in a general sense the following are the accepted forms:—

To Stop. Extend left arm and hold it stationary. (Some professional drivers move arm up and down from elbow.)

Turn Right. Extend left arm and beckon, or rotate hand from rear to front.

Turn Around. Signal for direction, continue until turned.

For a right hand drive machine—

To Stop. Extend right arm and hold stationary. (Some professional drivers move arm up and down from elbow.)

Turn Left. Extend right arm and beckon, or rotate hand from rear to front.

Turn Right. Extend right arm and hold stationary.

Turn Around. Signal for direction. Continue until turned.

The importance of a systematized signal cannot be overestimated. It is becoming more and more apparent. It will perhaps not be long before some device, as a car accessory, whereby proposed traffic signals can be given from the driver's seat, both by day and night, will be put upon the market. Until such is perfected it is the duty of every driver to properly study and learn to give unequivocal signals which cannot be mistaken.

It is the very proper tendency of all Courts and Automobile Departments to place a distinct burden of caution upon every driver of a car which is in a good position for observation of signals given by the driver of any other car; that is, a driver approaching from the rear is held to caution notwithstanding a signal from the car in front. The fact that any signal at all is given puts the following driver to a duty of extreme care based upon his knowledge that the leader is about to do something.

Exactness will probably be attained sometime in the future, but is not as yet, and until it is, the primary rule must be that the first effect of every signal is cautionary.

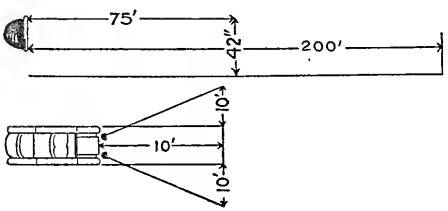
Signals must be watched for not only in cities, but whenever another car is in a position where a signal can be given. The signal is as important in connection with ordinary road running as in congested traffic.

The towns throughout Connecticut are gradually finding out the utility of the so-called "silent policeman." It may be expected that these will be much more generally installed during the next few years.

It should be the effort of every driver to properly regard them and not to become careless, even though there is apparently no reason why his special problem calls for passing as directed.

HEADLIGHTS.

The requirements of the motor vehicle law of 1919, relating to headlights, may be met by complying with the following test:



1. The lights on the forward part of a motor vehicle, except as provided in (a), one upon each side, of approximately the same candle power, which candle power shall not be greater than 24, unless especially allowed by certificate of the commissioner.

(a) One light on the forward part of a motor cycle.

2. Installation of a device to prevent glare, which has been approved and certified by the Commissioner, and has been applied and adjusted in accordance with such certificate.

3. Lights of every motor vehicle, except as provided in (a), to give 200 feet of driving light.

(a) Lights of a commercial motor vehicle of two tons carrying capacity or over, which is so mechanically constructed or controlled that it cannot exceed a speed of 15 miles an hour, to give 100 feet of driving light.

4. Lights to throw no dazzling rays or beams of reflected light ahead of the car higher than 42 inches at a point 75 feet ahead of the vehicle.

5. Give light ten feet in front of and ten feet to each side of the motor vehicle.

6. Lights to be visible at a distance of 200 feet straight ahead.

In general the certificate from the Commissioner means that the type of bulb, bulb adjustment, aiming of headlamp and the application of device must comply exactly and in all details to be covered.

RAILROAD GRADE CROSSINGS.

[This article contributed by the Public Utilities Commission for the State of Connecticut.]

Wherever a highway crosses a steam railroad at grade there is a large element of danger and a necessity for caution on the part of every automobile driver about to use the same, and particularly where the view of approaching trains is obstructed.

No automobile driver should attempt to ross the tracks of a railroad at grade with a highway unless he is sure that it is safe to do so. This is a resonable requirement in the interest of personal safety and its strict observance should eliminate all automobile accidents at grade crossings.

Realizing, on account of their speed, that auto drivers not thoroughly familiar with the highway should have more advanced warning of the presence of a grade crossing than that afforded by the ordinary railroad crossing sign located immediately at the crossing, a law was enacted in Connecticut in 1917 requiring the municipalities to erect and maintain warning signs on every highway approaching a crossing at grade, conspicuously located beside the highway at a distance of not less than 300 feet nor more than 500 feet from the nearest rail of such crossing. These signs are of a uniform type, consisting of a metal disc 24 inches in diameter with white enamel field and enamel black perpendicular and horizontal lines running through the same, and having a black enamel "R" in each of the upper quarters.

The existence of these signs and the use of proper caution, gives every automobile driver notice at a distance of at least 300 feet from point of crossing, that he is approaching a grade crossing, thus affording him ample opportunity to slow down and stop before going over the same.

In addition to these advance warning signs, the Public Utilities Commission has required STOP signs and other protective devices at the more dangerous crossings. At crossings not protected by gates or flagman, which in the opinion of the Commission public safety requires self-propelled vehicles to come to a stop before crossing, there is required to be erected and maintained by the railroad company a sign consisting of a metal disc 24 inches in diameter with white enamel field and having the word "STOP" in large black letters written thereon. Wherever these signs are located the careful driver will slow down and come to a full stop if necessary, and be sure there is no train approaching, before crossing the tracks.

At crossings where gates are operated or flagman is on duty only part of the 24 hours of each day, a somewhat similar STOP sign is to be displayed, whenever the gateman or flagman is off duty. These latter signs will be lighted at night. The fact that such crossings are protected by gates or flagman part of the time indicates a very dangerous place, and whenever such STOP sign is displayed, indicating that gateman or flagman is off duty, the auto driver should slow down and come to a full stop if necessary and be sure there is no train approaching, before crossing the tracks.

The flagman located at grade crossings, instead of waving a white flag when trains are approaching, as formerly, now holds in his upraised hand a disc with the word STOP plainly visible thereon.

At certain crossings there is located what is known as the banjo signal, so named on account of its shape, and in the center of the oval top there is an opening 18 inches in diameter which shows clear excepting when trains are approaching, at which time it shows red. The sign is lighted at night and the red warning sign whenever displayed is visible at all times. This is an automatic signal operated by approaching trains, and if for any reason the mechanism should fail, the device automatically goes to danger, that is, shows a red light or banner.

There are also located at certain crossings, bells automatically operated by approaching trains to give warning to travel on the highway.

Every automobile driver should become thoroughly familiar with and carefully observe all official signs erected along the highway for his guidance and protection, and particularly at grade crossings.

THE STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

[This article is contributed by the State Highway Commissioner for the State of Connecticut.]

The close of the war finds the State Highway Department faced with the necessity of constructing a large amount of roads in order to catch up with the public needs. On this account, there has been a considerable appropriation recommended by the different committees of the legislature. It is too early at the present writing, April, 15th, to give the details of these appropriations, but it is expected that they will be large and that the work of highway construction and maintenance will not be further delayed.

In addition, we find that the United States Government has taken active steps to participate in the construction of roads all over the country, and has made large appropriations for this purpose. Connecticut's share for the next two years will be approximately $1,000,000, which will have to be matched by an equal expenditure of State funds.

It is extremely interesting to compare the costs of roads at the present time with those of 1913 and 1914. The average cost per mile of roads at that time was between $10,000 and $12,000, while at the present time, not taking into consideration the improvement of types, the average cost per mile for roads is approximately $16,000. Add to this the necessary improvement in surface types, and it is safe to figure that highways of the future will cost approximately $25,000 per mile.

The policy of this State, of course, has been to develop certain highways for concentrated traffic, but what the future result of this policy will be no one can foretell. Other and older countries have developed their entire highway systems along systematic lines, improving all the highways as fast as funds could be secured. It does not seem feasible for the State of Connecticut to carry out this policy, because we have been unable to develop our main roads fast enough to keep pace with the increase in motor vehicle traffic. Consequently, it seems that before we go into the extensive improvement of all the town roads that the main routes must be completed, so that a fast, through travel may be accommodated.

Consideration must be given to the improvement of the highways leading back from the main thoroughfares, so that the farming and other industries of the state may be properly developed.

This problem, together with the high cost of material and labor mentioned above are after-war problems which must be solved within the next two years. The policy of constructing hard-surfaced pavements on main thoroughfares will be continued, and the work will be done as fast as funds become available.

ALWAYS CONSULT LIST OF TRANSFERS FIRST. This list will be found at the end of this book, and may contain changes in the particular car the registration of which you are looking up, these transfers having been made since original license had been taken out earlier in the year.

AS TO ERRORS—If there are any inaccuracies noted in list as printed in the following pages, these errors will invariably be found to be due to the lack of care on the part of the applicant in preparing the application card for license. The department urges every applicant to be particular as to every detail, and especially to see that the name and address are written plainly—typewritten whenever possible.
